MORE GEAR THAN HANDS TO HOLD IT? SEASUCKER'S READY

If boat owners permanently installed hooks everywhere one was needed, there'd be little fiberglass left with all the holes they'd drill. Thankfully, there's the new Line & Hose Hook from SeaSucker. In a matter of seconds, it temporarily mounts exactly where needed, ready to secure everything from a dock line to a shore power cable to a garden hose.

Made in the USA of durable high-density polyethylene (HDPE), the Line & Hose Hook uses the power of a 4.5" SeaSucker Vacuum Mount. Holding up to 120 lbs. once attached to any clean surface, it can be used topsides, below deck or even on the hull. The device has two large hooks and a center cleat; a pair of 0.5" utility holes add to the accessory's functionality.

Simple to use, the Line & Hose Hook is positioned where needed and the power button pumped until the orange section disappears. If the color reappears after a couple of days, a few quick pumps recharges it. And when it's time to move or stow the device—or even repurpose it around the house—it removes without leaving a mark. Available in white or black, the SeaSucker Line & Hose Hook is 8.5" L x 4.6" H x 6" D and costs $99.
