BUFF MAGIC: THE GO-TO COMPOUND FOR RESTORING BOATS

Every marina has boats that are carefully maintained from bow to stern by pro detailers and experienced DIYers. To achieve their stunning results, most rely on premium-quality professional-grade products. So, when it's time to give new life to a faded, tired-looking hull and deck, their go-to product is often Shurhold Buff Magic Surface Reconditioner & Metal Polish.

Made in the USA, Buff Magic's unique formula actually breaks down as it's applied. Its abrasive particles become ever finer, to take the surface from dull to ultra-glossy. The easy-to-apply paste removes oxidation, staining, surface rust, tarnish, and P800 and finer DA and Plexiglass scratches. In addition to gelcoat and paint, it's also the ideal cleaner and polisher for stainless steel, aluminum, brass, bronze, copper, gold and other precious metals.

A small amount of Buff Magic is applied with a damp cloth and hand-buffed until a residue appears. It has no fillers, so using less product is more effective. A second buffing with a soft microfiber cloth is next. Shurhold's Dual Action Polisher with a twisted wool pad used with light pressure will shorten work time. Once the surface shines, it should be sealed with a high-quality protectant such as Shurhold Pro Polish Wax.

Beyond the boat, Buff Magic is ideal for restoring RV and car finishes, and hazy automotive headlights. Around the home, it's great for stainless steel grills and appliances, and acrylic tubs and showers.

A 22 oz. jar of Shurhold Buff Magic Surface Reconditioner & Metal Polish, sufficient for a boat up to 35' with average oxidation, costs $37.55. A 64 oz. jar covers 35'-60' vessels and is $79.67. For larger projects, a 10 lb. pail is offered for $186.71.
